ALLIES BREAK INTO DEFENCE LINE BELOW ROME

Retreat of German 10th Army Cut Off

ALLIED TANKS AND INFANTRY WERE LAST NIGHT ADVANCING THROUGH GAPS FORCED IN THE "VALMONTONE LINE" BY THE CAPTURE OF VALMONTONE ITSELF, ON "HIGHWAY SIX," AND VELLETRI, ON THE APPIAN WAY. THESE TOWNS, THE STRONGEST POINTS OF THE GERMANS' MAIN BARRIER BEFORE ROME, FELL AFTER FIGHTING OF EXTREME VIOLENCE.

To the south, the Eighth Army captured Ferentino—also on "Highway Six"—and Veroli. The German 10th Army is thus caught between the two Allied forces on the main inland road to Rome, and holds less than seventeen miles of the Highway.

Rome is plainly in sight of the American troops exploiting their advance by vigorous assaults north of Velletri. Resistance has stiffened everywhere along the Rome line in a last stubborn holding effort.

Tremendous Allied power is being brought to bear against the whole length of the penetrated Valmontone Line.

The denting of the stubbornly-defended barrier came with the firm establishment of American infantry on the crest of the ridge north of Velletri.

Velletri itself was flanked by penetration and by an armoured column charging towards Lake Albano. The assault on the town continued right through the night, and it fell following severe fighting in the streets.

German paratroopers have been thrown in to try to stem the tide above Velletri, and a.-a. batteries are being used as defensive artillery.

TANKS PUSH ON

The battle is going on non-stop. At dusk last night British and American infantry and tanks were still pounding hard to widen the breaches forced in the German defences. Tanks of an American unit are pushing into the Valmontone and Velletri gaps. Seventeen miles back down "Highway Six," the Eighth Army has captured Ferentino, seven miles above Frosinone, thus steadily cutting down the "pocket" containing the German forces caught between the Fifth Army at Valmontone and the Eighth Army. Just how many German divisions are still left is not yet known, but it is assumed to be less than nine.

Eight miles due east of Ferentino, the Eighth Army's mountain sweep has cleared the areas up to Veroli, whose capture is also announced. The American 1st Armoured Division, under the command of Major-General Ernest N. Harmon, is fighting with the Fifth Army, it is now officially disclosed. They are the same tanks, under the same commander, who, little more than a year ago, effected the breakthrough at Mateur, in Tunisia, which resulted in the fall of Bizerta and the defeat of General von Arnim's army.

More than 100 motor vehicles and tanks were knocked out yesterday by fighter bombers operating against German transport north and south of Rome.

The battle in the Velletri and Valmontone areas was as violent as the Somme and Verdun fighting of the last war, the Berlin correspondent of the Scandinavian Telegram Bureau reported last night.

"The battlefields," he stated, "were scorched and ploughed by shells and mines. In their shell-holes, trenches and bunkers, German troops fought desperately to the last bullet before retreating to new positions.

"The Allies sent forward one wave of attacks after another. It was an avalanche of tanks and infantry with heavy weapons which heralded cascades of shells from the artillery and bombs from hundreds of planes. Hour after hour and day after day this battle of attrition—one of the greatest of the war—continues mercilessly and bitterly without a moment's pause."

A German High Command statement, broadcast last night, said:

"The struggle on the southern and south-eastern fringe of the Alban Hills has grown even more acute. In the sector between Velletri and Lariano American Sherman tanks and mounted infantry penetrated into our lines at several points and cut off a battle group of German parachutists.

"This sector was the scene of most savage fighting. At daybreak the enemy laid down a drum-fire barrage on the German lines after putting a smoke-screen over his own positions.

"As the curtain of shell-fire crept up the hillside the enemy tanks pushed forward with mounted infantry in four distinct waves. Our isolated dust-smothered parachutists, sticky with sweat, were rescued by Panzers from outside the ring and led to a new line of resistance in the rear."

The German News Agency Military Commentator, Karl Praegner, stated:

"The large-scale Allied attacks have continued with exceptional violence, especially on the western flank, north of Aprilia; at Lanuvio, and in the area of Velletri. South of Valmontone the Americans, by a massed effort, were able to achieve small local territorial gains, but were unable to accomplish their operational objective—a breakthrough the German lines. In the night, defensive forces in the Alban Hills concentrated on a new position several kilometrès to the rear without being hindered by the Anglo-Americans.

"A grim struggle was also waged south-east of Valmontone, where panzer grenadiers tenaciously repulsed daylong attacks by powerful infantry and tank forces."

According to the commentator Sertorius, Kesselring's coastal buttress in the Alban Hills would be held until the German troops had completed their present retreat to a new defence line, the location of which could not yet be discerned. "Not all has gone without a hitch, but, by and large, it has been an orderly retreat," Sertorius said. "The enemy has come closing in on the front, and has also repeatedly tried to by-pass our withdrawal, driving at its flanks.

"The enemy has thrown his big battalions into the sector between the sea and the depression of Giulianella, Artena and Valmontone, and more often than not he wheels round the main weight of his attacks. Fresh reserves are being brought up continuously. Air superiority is put to the maximum use."

Mr. Churchill's Son Escapes with Tito

Marshal Tito, together with Major Randolph Churchill, the British Premier's son, escaped to the mountains, when German parachutists and glider-borne infantry captured the Bosnian headquarters of the Yugo-Slav partisan leader on May 25th, according to an Associated Press message from Bari dated May 29th.

Practically all other Allied officers attached to Marshal Tito's staff also escaped. John Talbot, Reuter's correspondent, and two photographers were captured.

Marshal Rommel, whose whereabouts have been shrouded in mystery for many weeks past, personally directed the attack on the partisans.

German paratroops have been used on missions like this in the past. The most outstanding was when they were employed to rescue Mussolini.

The German News Agency last night said that partisans, armed with flame-throwers, attacked the township of Samorbor, near Zagreb. They were expelled by Croat troops.—(Reuter.)

"I Saw Fall of Velletri"

From Omar Garrison, Reuter's Special Correspondent with the Fifth Army in Velletri, Friday.

I saw Velletri fall to-day.

The fight for this key German stronghold over Route Seven, one of the two main highways into Rome, was among the most savage in the drive for the capital.

For several days the town had been besieged. The Germans had planted tanks under culverts and used them as artillery to resist the Allied advance.

From the high ridges around Allied positions they poured down a continuous cataract of mortar and machine-gun fire. Allied troops had begun to speak of it as "a second Cassino." Then the breakthrough was made, and the outskirts were rapidly entered.

The German lines defending the city were rolled back, while infantry spilled into the streets like rivers, mopping up pockets of the enemy who had dug in for their rearguard action.

I could see wildly scattered flashes from shells stabbing the early dusk and the ball of haze that had begun to envelop Velletri.

Over the densely-wooded rim of the Alban Hills heavy guns began to shoot from the deep glens and dominating heights. They were Allied. In the town itself I was surprised to see many houses almost intact, in spite of the heavy shelling.

During a halt under fire an American who had taken refuge under a lorry pulled out a crumpled movie magazine and started reading it in the waning light. "Look," he said, pointing to one photograph, "that's Edward G. Robinson. He's the guy I like to see act. He's really tough."

Pope Makes Appeal to Save Rome from Attack

THE hope that Rome would be saved from becoming a theatre of war was expressed by the Pope yesterday in a broadcast to the College of Cardinals.

In the midst of so much pain, he said, it must be pointed out that air attacks against the inner areas of the city have been conducted with greater care.

"In this world conflict of human tragedy developing around us," he said, "events in the last year have reached grave and atrocious proportions which horrify all Christian and human feelings. Once more we feel it our duty to share your anguish of soul and to deplore the increasing tragedies, destruction, ruin and death, which only a year ago would have appeared impossible, but have nevertheless become a stark reality. The very sacred soil round St. Peter's, the Eternal City and Mother of Civilisation, has had to experience the present-day horrors of war, and our mission, at the present moment, is to save the family of mankind and prepare it for a saner future. This kind of war is remote from all that had once been considered inviolable."

Having referred to the importance of an enduring solution, he continued: "Once again we repeat with impartiality and painful firmness that whoever dared to lift his hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide before the world and God's eternal justice. Looking at the present general condition of the world we see events which, from both the material and spiritual points of view, fill our souls with justified anxiety. Thus the weight of responsibility on our weak shoulders demands that, daily and hourly, you be ever vigilant and alert, and keep your hearts open to all. Like our great predecessors, we feel it our duty in this era of unparalleled poverty to devote our pastoral care to the voices arising from all sides for help. We must help all, without distinction of nationality or race, until the tormented world at last finds peace. Our special attention must be devoted to Rome, where such a large part of the population is living under terrible conditions.

"This is not the first time that the Eternal City has been caught in the turmoil, but even when some 158,000 people fled, as in one case, from Tuscany and Naples to Rome, it was nothing compared with the numbers of people hit by the present conflict. In spite of the exertions of public authorities and institutions, the number of paupers grows daily. Many who yesterday bestowed charity are to-day themselves begging. Shirking no sacrifice, discouraged by no refusal, deterred by no violation of our rights, we have never ceased to support to the utmost of our resources the population of Rome and the neighbouring areas. We have even begun to negotiate the transport of foodstuffs by Vatican ships, but are still awaiting the consent of one of the belligerents.

PEACE

"It is significant," proceeded the Pope, "that whilst the means of destruction have attained an unprecedented perfection, and whilst the world is on the threshold of even more dramatic and decisive events, the question of peace is attracting greater discussion, notwithstanding that the voice of moderation is mingled with that of open violence. The latter is akin to Cicero's saying: 'Complete victory or complete destruction.' This thought is apt to turn the minds of even those, who, by nature, would be inclined to accept a reasonable peace.

"It is of the highest importance that solutions be found, which are not merely partly successful, but true and enduring. Any just solution of the world conflict must be considered as two separate complex questions—The prolongation of the war and the terms of peace and the guarantee of their execution. We pray that rulers and peoples will follow the precepts of Marcus Claudius Marcellus: 'Conquer yourself; keep your temper; spare the vanquished; help the fallen foe to his feet.'"

Bomb Train Explosion Wrecks Station

Two men were killed and six people were injured in a small Cambridgeshire town yesterday, when a railway truck loaded with bombs exploded as it was passing through a station.

The dead men were James William Nightall, the fireman of the engine, and the station signalman, named Bridges, who died some hours after the accident. The railway station was wrecked, and the stationmaster, his wife and two children, were among those injured.

Gimbert, the engine driver, and Nightall were taking their 50-truck train of ammunition through the station at about 2 a.m., when Gimbert saw that a wagon of bombs immediately behind the engine tender was on fire. Nightall jumped down, uncoupled the burning wagon, and ran back to the engine as Gimbert opened the throttle again. The engine began to draw away from the station with its blazing load, and was picking up speed when the wagon blew up with a great roar.

Almost simultaneously a nearby gasometer burst into flames.

Missing Boy Drowned

Gerald Lane (6), of 146 Upper Leeson street, Dublin, who had been missing from his home since last Tuesday, was found floating in the canal between the lock and Baggot Street Bridge. A man jumped into the water and removed the body, which was subsequently taken to the morgue in Baggot Street Hospital.

Barrage Balloon Over Limerick

A barrage balloon which floated over Limerick on Thursday night caused alarm in the Ballinacurra area, where the trailing cable struck the electric light wires and smashed the high tension lines to Cork and Kerry. It tore up produce in several gardens as well as one of the nets from a local tennis club.

The balloon was first seen caught in trees at Cratloe Wood, but later it broke away and came towards the city. After some time it floated completely out of sight.

President's Proclamation This Week-end

THE President's proclamation announcing the dissolution of the Eleventh Dail, which is expected during the week-end, also will include the date on which the Twelfth Dail will assemble. The first meeting will, it is expected, be next Friday, writes our Political Correspondent.

The return of the writs for election in the several constituencies are expected to reach Leinster House to-day. When these are completed, the Clerk of the Dail will report to the Taoiseach, who will advise the President.

No ministerial changes are anticipated in the new Cabinet, and as in the last Dail, Mr. Daniel McMenamin will be Deputy Speaker.

NO BITTERNESS

The feeling in political circles last evening was that the general election finished on a very satisfactory note; that there is no sign of any bitterness which might endanger good relations between parties in the coming years. Mr. de Valera's after-election message was regarded as setting a good headline, and the tone of it generally is reciprocated.

Leaders of the Opposition parties showed no disposition to make statements for publication. General Mulcahy, last night, had not returned to Dublin from Tipperary, and Mr. Donnellan, leader of Clann na Talmhan, is not expected till next week.

The Labour Party is not altogether dissatisfied at its achievement, and National Labour considers that it did very well, notwithstanding the many disadvantages with which it had to contend.

Mr. James Dillon was at Leinster House for some time yesterday afternoon, and was naturally pleased with the fact that he was returned at the top of the poll in Monaghan. He does not propose to make any public statement until the Dail meets.

In a statement on the result of the election, Mr. Frank Purcell, Secretary, National Labour Party, says:

"The success of the National Labour candidates is most encouraging. As a new party, with no organisation or machinery established, and with no time to remedy these disadvantages effectively, it was caught in a whirlwind campaign, which gave it no chance to overcome those handicaps. But the outcome, considered in contrast with the reverse suffered by the Labour Party, is a striking vindication of the policy and founders of National Labour.

"We do not rejoice in the humiliation and defeat suffered by Mr. Norton and his colleagues, except in so far as they serve to awaken the Labour movement to the dangers of suffering its ranks to be infiltrated by people who have other and wholly incompatible political affiliations."

Messrs. Liam Cosgrave, H. M. Dockrell and Desmond Fitzgerald, in a statement to the Press, expressed thanks to the electors of Co. Dublin who voted for them, particularly to helpers and workers who gave the assistance which resulted in an increase in the total Fine Gael poll.

SENATE

The following have been nominated for membership of the Senate:

Administrative Panel—James T. McGee, Ardee, auctioneer and farmer; Michael Hearne, Main street, Longford, building contractor and farmer.

Agricultural Panel—William E. Wylie, Clonsilla House, Co. Dublin, Judge of the High Court, 1920-36; John Leonard, Culmullen, Drumree, Co. Meath, landowner, farmer, cattle and horse-breeder.

Industrial and Commercial Panel—Michael Davitt, Castlepollard, Co. Meath, auctioneer, valuer and estate agent; Alexander Haslett, Glaslough, Co. Monaghan, auctioneer, valuer and estate agent.

CONTINENTAL SWEEPS BY ALLIED BOMBERS

HEAVY bombers attacked railway yards in Eastern Hungary and Transylvania yesterday, according to a Reuter despatch from Allied Headquarters.

The targets included Miskolcz, 100 miles north-east of Budapest; Szolnok, 55 miles south-east of Budapest; and Szeged, 5 miles from the junction of the Yugo-Slav-Rumanian and Hungarian frontier, where the lines from Budapest to Belgrade and Bucharest meet.

Between 500 and 750 escorted heavy bombers attacked Club, in Transylvania, 200 miles north-west of Bucharest; Simeria, in Transylvania, 80 miles north-east of the Iron Gate, on the line between Hungary and Ploesti. There was no fighter opposition and very little A.-A. fire.

German military installations in the Pas de Calais area of France were attacked yesterday by very strong forces of Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the Eighth Air Force. They were escorted by medium-sized forces of Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs. A Press Association air correspondent estimates that from 750 to 1,000 bombers, escorted by up to 500 fighters, took part in the attack.

The Press Association announced that a big attack on objectives in Northern France was launched last night.

Shuttle Bombing to Russian Bases

American bombers landed on American air bases somewhere in the Soviet Union after bombing German targets in Eastern Europe in a first shuttle bombing operation yesterday. After the bombing the American Flying Fortresses were met and escorted to the Soviet bases by American Mustangs and Soviet Yaks. At the base, American and Soviet soldiers, who had been working preparing the bases, were on hand for a brief and happy celebration before servicing the American aircraft with fuel and ammunition.

A statement issued yesterday under the authority of Major-General John R. Deane, head of the U.S. Military Mission in Moscow, said:—"History was made to-day when American Flying Fortresses dropped tons of bombs on targets in Eastern Europe, and then, escorted by American Mustangs and Soviet Yaks, roared over the Eastern front to settle down on bases somewhere in Russia."

The statement stresses that the operations marked the first large-scale physical collaboration of air forces from Britain and Russia. Henceforth, by shuttle bombing, American aircraft, after bombing their targets, can fly east or west to prepared bases. This cuts down enormously the total flying distances involved when certain targets in Eastern Germany or Eastern Europe are attacked.—(Reuter.)

Identity of Gun In Kerry Case

THE hearing was resumed yesterday, in Tralee District Court, of the murder charge against Thomas O'Shea (23), Ardkearagh, and John Brennan (35), Toor, Waterville, Co. Kerry, both married farmers. They are accused of shooting Michael P. O'Sullivan (49), married, farmer, Ardkearagh, on January 12th, 1943, in a cow byre at his home. The further hearing was adjourned to Waterville on Monday.

Detective-Sergeant Keyes, Tralee, said that he went to the house of Brennan to April 14th, 1943, for the purpose of getting a gun, which witness had with him, identified by Brennan. He asked Brennan if the gun were the same as the one he (Brennan) saw with Tommy O'Shea before the murder. Brennan, when he saw the gun, flushed, and his hands shook as he took it. Brennan said the gun was, in his opinion, the same as the one he hid for O'Shea when the Guards came searching the house of the dead man, looking for a missing bicycle. Witness later interviewed O'Shea and got a statement from him.

Supt. O'Shea, Cahirciveen, said that the accused man, O'Shea, in a statement, said that his mother died soon after his birth. His father, James O'Shea, was a national teacher, and the accused man resided with him until 1936, when he ran away to his aunt, Mrs. Ellen O'Sullivan, at Ardkeragh.

The accused man also stated to the superintendent that he spent two years in college. His marriage in 1941 was out of necessity, but his aunt had no objection to it.

Council Dissolved By Minister

ROSCOMMON Co. Council has been dissolved because, in the view of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, it has failed to carry out the County Manager's instructions to maintain the public roads of the county.

After an inquiry two months ago into the situation, the Council, which had a predominantly Clann na Talmhan membership, decided to adhere to its decision not to increase the roads estimate, despite a warning by the Minister. The Irish Times reported this decision exclusively on Tuesday last.

The Minister yesterday made an order removing the members of the Council from office, and has appointed Mr. Seumas McLysaght, Merrion road, Dublin, to be Commissioner for the local authority.

The official announcement states that the evidence given at the public inquiry clearly showed that the refusal of the Council to provide a sufficient sum for the maintenance of the main roads of the county would result in a serious deterioration in their condition and would be prejudicial to public safety.

Twenty-four hours before the Minister's decision was announced, the Chairman of the Council, Mr. J. J. Meighan, who was a member of Clann na Talmhan, had lost his Dail seat to Fianna Fail. The Fianna Fail deputy who gained the seat was Chairman of the Council before the last Local Government Election, when Fianna Fail had a majority on the Council.

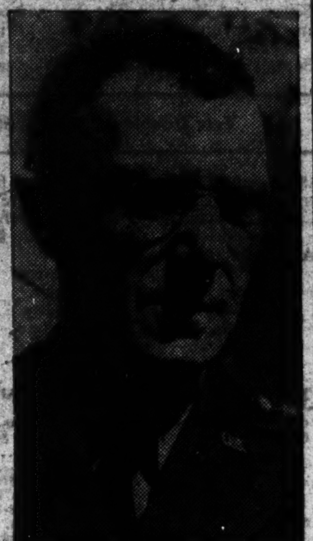
After the Local Government Elections, the Farmers, with a decisive majority on the Council, set out to reduce expenditure, and decided that extra expenditure on the upkeep of tarred roads would be to the detriment of agricultural interests. Thus the impasse arose.

With Mr. Meighan as Chairman, the Council never seriously clashed with the Local Government Department until the dispute on the roads estimate.

Farmers' representation began in Roscommon six years ago with a cross-roads meeting protesting against what was termed unfair distribution of bull licences. The Roscommon Farmers' Association was formed after that, and it eventually affiliated with Clann na Talmhan.

French Committee Changes Name

The French Committee of National Liberation announced last night that it would assume the name of the "Provisional Government of the French Republic."—(Reuter.)



GENERAL STILWELL.

Burma Towns Captured by Chinese

CHINESE forces, advancing on Tengchung, west of the Burma road, have captured two more key towns in their new drive to re-open China's supply life-line and link up with the Allied forces in Myitkyina, Reuter reported last night.

Yesterday's Chinese communiqué, disclosing the successes, said that the army was advancing in a westerly direction. The capture of Tengchung would put them within 50 miles of the Myitkyina battle. American aircraft, under Major-General Chennault, are supporting the new drive.

In Myitkyina General Stilwell's forces, advancing against stiff resistance, have captured about half the city. Fighting on three sides, Chinese and American forces have made advances outside and inside the city. One group from the north-west has progressed 1,500 yards. In South Myitkyina General Stilwell's troops have gained a further 400 yards.

Yesterday's communiqué said that outside Myitkyina the Chinese have continued to advance from Malakawng, north-west of the city. Below Myitkyina the Chindits have wiped out more than 3,700 Japanese since they began operations. The Chindits killed 700 Japanese before they withdrew from the rail and road block south-west of Mogaung a few days ago. The Allied columns are separated from each other by only a few hundred yards. Allied artillery has set fire to a village four miles north-west of Bishenpur, below the Allied Imphal base, where British and Indian troops have surrounded a strong Japanese group.

A report from Chungking yesterday states that the Japanese column advancing along the Canton-Hankow Railway was halted at Kweiyi, 42 miles north of Changsha, the capital of Hunan Province, in South-Eastern China.

Possibility of a Gaelic Ireland

Despite the fact that they formed part of a great English-speaking empire, a big percentage of the Welsh people had retained and spoke their native language, said Professor E. O'Toole, M.A., in Dublin last night, when presiding at the annual debate in English of Dublin University College Gaelic Society.

No language movement, he said, could succeed unless a big number of people were prepared to work hard for that ideal; to sacrifice themselves for it. The Gaelic League had placed an ideal before the people, but, since the establishment of a native Government, the work of that organisation had been largely taken over, unfortunately not with very good effect.

Speaking in favour of the motion, "That 23 years of Irish Government had shown that a Gaelic Ireland is impossible," which was declared lost, Mr. J. Morton said that persistence in the language revival movement and "this rather embittered nationalism" would not help to make the relations between Ireland and England any better. The use of Irish as a medium through which to teach other subjects in recent years had, he thought, been a drag on the education of our people.

Mr. W. Stephens said that for 22 years successive Governments had been spending time, money and energy trying to revive the language, and had failed—simply because the people did not want it.

Mr. P. Kavanagh said that only a country which was self-sufficient could afford the luxury of a language.

Bringing the debate to a close, the Chairman said that the survival of the Welsh language was due largely to the preaching, in the national language, in Welsh Nonconformist chapels—a tradition established about two hundred years ago.

Four Billion Dollar Budgets

The United States House of Representatives' Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended fully the 1945 Budgets requested by the Lend-Lease Administration and U.N.R.R.A.

The Committee reported to the House legislation providing 3,450,570,000 dollars (£862,642,500) for Lend-Lease and 450,000,000 dollars (£112,500,000) for American participation in U.N.R.R.A., with additional authority for the President to transfer to it 350,000,000 dollars (£87,500,000) in Lend-Lease funds which might not be needed immediately.

Archbishop's Jubilee

The Most Rev. Dr. J. M. Harty, Archbishop of Cashel and Emly, will celebrate to-morrow the golden jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood. On Monday Pontifical High Mass, at which Dr. Harty will preside, will be sung by the Most Rev. Dr. Kinane, Coadjutor Archbishop, in the Cathedral, Thurles.

A telegram has been received from Cardinal Maglione, Papal Secretary of State, Vatican City, conveying the Pope's congratulations and Apostolic Blessing.

Dr. Harty was ordained in Clonliffe College on Trinity Sunday, 1894, by the late Most Rev. Dr. Walsh, Archbishop of Dublin. He has been Archbishop of Cashel and Emly since 1914.

In operations patterned on the assault on the Tirpitz, carrier-borne aircraft of the British Fleet Air Arm on Thursday night made their sixth successful strike against German shipping in Norwegian waters, says a British Admiralty communiqué.

Allies About to Invade Europe, Says Japanese Foreign Minister

MAMORA SHIGEMITSU, THE JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER, SAID YESTERDAY IN TOKYO, IN THE PRESENCE OF HEINRICH STAHMER, THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR:—"THE HOUR OF THE FINAL DECISION HAS STRUCK, BOTH IN THE EAST AND IN THE WEST. THE WAR HAS REACHED ITS CLIMAX, WITH AMERICA AND ENGLAND ON THE POINT OF INVADING EUROPE."

An A.P. message from Washington last night said that the U.S. Army expects to have a strong enough foothold on the European Continent between July 1st and December to need $562,000,000 (about £140,000,000) to feed and maintain the liberated populations during that period.

Major-General Lucius D. Clay, Director of Material for the Army service forces, asked the House Appropriations Committee yesterday for this amount.

When Sir Stafford Cripps, British Minister of Aircraft Production was being shown round the Hawker Aircraft Co. yesterday he was handed a resolution by the shop steward of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, on behalf of the tool room workers, stating: "The opening of the invasion of the West is now long overdue, and any delay is bound to cause increasing apathy of the workers, which will react unfavourably on the production of vital war weapons."

The Press Association stated last night:—

London will be the world's news centre when the Allied forces begin their invasion of Western Europe. It is expected that 700,000 words a day will be transmitted during the initial stages. A Traffic Control Committee operating from the Ministry of Information will have at its command the greatest concentration of communications ever known.

Arrangements have also been made for sending news pictures by radio to every corner of the earth. This net-work of news distribution will be in charge of Mr. J. H. Brebner, Director of the Ministry of Information, News Division, who has been appointed Chairman of the Traffic Control Committee.

Paris Radio stated yesterday:—"Large Allied forces assembled in Corscia and Northern Africa are awaiting their employment in operations on the southern flank of Europe."

Reuter's Stockholm correspondent says that the Germans have warned that, in exceptional circumstances, all private telegraph traffic in Germany will be stopped, according to the German Press. The Hamburger Fremdenblatt says that "special events" may necessitate the limitation of private telegraph traffic in favour of the military.—(Reuter.)

MR. SHAW'S CARLOW GIFT

IN a letter to Carlow Urban Council Mr. George Bernard Shaw has offered to transfer to the Council some property in Carlow, of which he is the landlord. Mr. Shaw's offer has been accepted gratefully by the Council.

In the course of his letter Mr. Shaw refers to himself as an absentee landlord who, out of the 88 years of his life, has spent only one day in Carlow. "The economic situation," he states, "is that Carlow has to send my share of the rent to England, where it is confiscated by the British Government to defray the expense of military operations." He adds that, if the Council were to refuse his offer, the property would pass after his death to the National Gallery of Ireland, where he received much of his art education. He feels, however, that Carlow is "entitled to the first offer."

REVENUE

Mr. Shaw, in his letter, adds: "It was formerly a considerable property, but it now yields a net revenue of only £150 a year. There are now no incumbrances except the head rents.

"What I would beg the Urban District Council to consider is this: Suppose I make a gift of the property to the Council on trust for purposes which exclude its sale to private owners, the use of its revenue to relieve the rates directly, or for alms-giving in any form, confining it to improvements, house modernisation and experimental innovations, embarkment of the River Barrow, and, generally, for progressive work which would not otherwise be undertaken, would the Council accept the trust and establish a standing committee or a sub-committee to administer it?

"You may say that the property is too small to be worth considering for such purposes. I should reply that it represents solid land, the importance of which to a city is not fairly measurable by the income of its private landlord, and that I can stipulate that it shall not be a closed trust, but be the nucleus of a civic improvement fund well advertised and open to all citizens who desire to follow my example, but like myself, do not know exactly how to do it."

HEAVY BATTLE IN RUMANIA

RUSSIAN counter-attacks, in reply to German actions on three front—north of Jassy, in Rumania; in the Kolomea area of the Carpathian foothills and near Vitebsk, in White Russia—were reported last night from Berlin.

Exceptionally violent fighting developed north of Jassy, where the Russians, said the commentator, Von Hammer, temporarily forced a few local breaches.

The Soviet communiqué states that on June 2nd, north-west and north of Jassy, their troops repelled attacks by strong forces of German tanks and infantry. North-west of Jassy, the Germans, at the cost of heavy losses in men and material, succeeded in making a slight penetration into the Soviet defences. North of Jassy the Soviet troops successfully repulsed all attacks by tanks and infantry. Twenty-five German tanks were destroyed during the day's fighting. On other sectors of the front there were no material changes. On June 1st Soviet troops on all sectors of the front destroyed or disabled 27 German tanks and shot down 47 planes.—(Reuter.)

Moscow radio, in a special broadcast to the Soviet naval forces last night, said: "More hard battles now face us. Our sailors are ready for to-morrow. Comrades, forward to victory. Good luck on the high seas. Forward for the final liquidation of the German invaders."

Ministry of Shipping for Netherlands

In view of forthcoming events, a redistribution of certain Ministerial tasks in the Netherlands Cabinet has taken place, the Netherlands Government Information Bureau announced last night.

On account of the importance of the Netherlands Merchant Marine in connection with its part in the present warfare, and in view of its additional importance for the economic recovery of the Netheruands Kingdom after Holland's liberation, a separate Ministry of Shipping has been formed.

A new Department of Trade, Commerce and Agriculture has been formed.

FROM bobbin-boy earning a few shillings a week in a cotton factory to multi-millionaire who gave £70,0000,000 to help his fellow men. That in brief is the story of ANDREW CARNEGIE. He was born in 1835 at Dunfermline near Edinburgh. His father, an old-time hand-weaver, removed to the United States. Andrew worked as a telegraph messenger boy and at 16, when his father died, had to support his mother and younger brother. Self-taught he became an operator, train dispatcher, and later secretary to the superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railway. With his savings and some borrowed money he invested in a company to manufacture sleeping cars. He invested in oil, then in iron, and later in steel. In 1901, when he retired from the industrial world, he transferred his steel interests, at a valuation of £100,000,000 to the United States Steel Corporation. In accordance with his belief that "the man who dies possessed of wealth which he was free to distribute, dies disgraced" he commenced distributing his immense fortune for various educational and scientific purposes. He died in 1919 having in eighteen years, given away £70,000,000. Andrew Carnegie who, regardless of the gifts he gave to the peoples of many lands, believed that "no person and no community can be permanently helped except by their own co-operation."

EVERY BUSINESSMAN KNOWS

Every businessman knows that success depends upon effort—on wise planning—on a well-ordered, well-conceived scheme; in short, on taking advantage of every good opportunity that presents itself for improvement and development. Here is the ideal plan:—

£260 A YEAR FOR LIFE or £3,750 IN CASH

By instalment deposits of quarterly, half-yearly or yearly amounts you can provide the above handsome income. Should death occur in early life, £2,500 Capital sum will be paid, plus £62 10s. 0d. p.a. guaranteed bonus for each year of assurance. Capital sum and bonus is exempt from income tax, and allowance is made on instalment deposits at half the standard rate. The scheme is applicable at any age from 16 to 55, and for annuities greater or lesser than above amount.

Whatever your age or your income, fill up the form hereunder and post to us to-day.

Wartime limitations on manufacture naturally make VALENTINE Fountain Pens, like all luxury products, harder to get than usual. Be assured, however, that VALENTINE Fountain Pens are still being made and regular deliveries are being received though in present circumstances particular models cannot always be guaranteed.

So—ask your retailer to keep YOU in mind when his supplies arrive. For the name VALENTINE on a fountain pen means that you will get everything you are looking for—high quality, fine workmanship and a lifetime of perfect writing service.

Form Horses to Follow at Phoenix Park

IT should pay to follow winning form at Phoenix Park this afternoon, when several horses that have recently caught the judge's eye look like doing so again.

Paradise scored cleverly at Baldoyle, and Major Watt's filly should account for the opposition in the Brooke Plate, in which chief danger may come from Scoop and Beano. The last-named is also engaged in the opening event, and may go in that race.

Fumble was well backed when running second to Sammy's Rock, and has a chance to recover losses in the Blackrock Handicap, but may find the distance a trifle too far, and preference here is for Maritime Law, who may set his penalty at defiance.

Tote Double on 4th and 6th Races.

NEW IRISH TRAINER

Mr. E. T. O'Sullivan, one of the most prominent trainers in England some years ago, has received a licence to train under Rules of Racing and I.N.H.S. Rules. The horses, including The Pale, the best sprinter in England last year, formerly trained by M. T. Gleeson, who has relinquished his licence, will be under the new trainer's charge.

Mr. O'Sullivan, who was born in Cork and who was taken to Australia when very young by his parents, has world-wide experience, having trained horses in Australia, New Zealand, Spain and France before settling down in England. He will have several runners at Phoenix Park to-day.

TRINITY WEEK BOXING

Several prominent amateur boxers have been billed in special contests for the Trinity Week inter-'varsity boxing tournament, to be held in the Gymnasium, College Park, on Tuesday next. The bill, which includes Irish and Ulster champions, will consist of twelve bouts, and is timed to begin at 7.30.

Eire Athletic Titles

A SPLENDID entry has been received for the Amateur Athletic Union's championships meeting, which will be held to-day in the College Park, Dublin, starting at 2.30 p.m. All the holders are defending their titles. J. C. Conway, in the 100 and 220 yards, will have stiff opposition from W. T. D. Marshall, who is now at the top of his form; while, in the 440 yards, which should be the tit-bit of the afternoon, A. H. Rutherford will need all his speed to beat A. H. Ruskell, of Clonmel.

In the half-mile W. E. R. Hackett, of Dublin University, will face the strongest challenger of recent years in L. Browne, of Civil Service, while the mile should provide a great tussle between J. W. T. Tuckey (holder) and C. Callen (Crusaders).

Nearly all the important schools and colleges will be represented in the youths' events, including the 220 yards record-holder, S. O'Riordan (St. Mary's).

OPEN GOLF MIXED FOURSOMES

By J. P. ROONEY.

For the Irish Open Mixed Foursomes Cup at Milltown next week the entry (69 pairs) beats the record of 1942 by two. In point of "class" it also is a distinct improvement on previous years. There are 60 men on handicaps ranging from plus 1 to 9, and 28 ladies have handicaps of from 3 to 12.

It is an extremely interesting draw; in fact, one could name at least a dozen pairs each with a good chance of reaching the end of the competition, which has had a wonderful run of successes from 1929.

The holders are J. B. Carr and Miss McIntyre, who also were the 1939 winners, and it is worthy of note that Miss McIntyre's mother and Michael Crowley were the first winning combination.

The first pair start on Monday at 4 o'c., with six-minute intervals between each match.

Jail Sentence on Housebreakers

In the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court yesterday, before Judge Connolly, Cecil George Widdness (40), married, a native of Birmingham, with an address at De Vesci place, Dun Laoghaire, who pleaded guilty on seventeen counts of housebreaking, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Kevin Byrne (22), unemployed, of Ormond place, Dublin, who was found guilty of two charges of breaking and entering, and larceny of clothing to the value of £200, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Patrick Vincent Breslin (24), whose address was given as a Dublin hotel, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, second division, by Judge Davitt, in the Circuit Criminal Court yesterday. Breslin had pleaded guilty to breaking into shops and premises and stealing sugar, rice, and other goods valued at £60.

District Justice Mangan sentenced Patrick Fitzpatrick (60), of no fixed address or business, to six months' imprisonment for breaking into Rathfarnham Castle and stealing property valued at £3, and also breaking into the Castle Golf Club and stealing property valued at £5 18/-.

Your best protection against Burglary, Housebreaking and Larceny is an Insurance Policy with the Norwich Union.—J. G. Aston, Mgr., 63 Dawson street, Dublin.—(Advt.)

TIME FOR APPEAL OVER

The Supreme Court (Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Murnaghan, Mr. Justice Geoghegan, Mr. Justice O'Byrne and Mr. Justice Black) yesterday refused, with costs, an application of Mr. Donal A. O'Duffy (Don Alwyn), 29 Pembroke road, Dublin, for an extension of time to serve notice of appeal from a judgment of the High Court in favour of Independent Newspapers, Ltd., in his action against them for damages for alleged libel in a criticism of his play, "Milk and Honey" in the Irish Independent of July 14th last. At the close of the case for Mr. O'Duffy in the High Court the judge withdrew the action from the jury, and directed a verdict for Independent Newspapers, Ltd.

GRIMSBY FISH.—Haddocks, sprags, codling, whiting, ling, coalfish, dogfish, pollock, cod, gurnard and catfish (heads on) 6/5, lemon soles, plaice and dabs 15/6, halibut, turbot, brill, soles and slips 21/6, roker and skate 6/3, crabs 8/- per stone; lobsters 3/3 per lb.

MANCHESTER SALMON AND DEAD POULTRY.—Limited arrivals of Irish salmon had a steady trade at 1/9 per lb. wholesale. Irish poultry quickly cleared; turkeys 2/9; fowls, chickens, ducks and geese 1/9 per lb. wholesale (official prices).

Rail Speculators Take Their Profits

MARKETS finished the week on the Dublin Stock Exchange with a quiet appearance yesterday, and most attention was paid to Home Rails. Great Southern issues, following their recent strength, encountered profit-taking by speculators, which caused prices to fall back in most cases. The tone was again steady to firm in other directions.

Great Southern Ord. relapsed two points to 54½, and the Pref. a point to 55½. The Guar. closed 1½ points down at 70½, but the Deb. held steady. Great Northern Ord. firmed up to 26½, and the Pref. to 44.

Gilt-edged issues were well maintained. 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds made headway to 109, and 3½ p.c. War Loan was unchanged at 103½.

In Banks, Munster and Leinsters shaded off to 137s. 9d., but other issues were unaltered. Cairnes Ord., Guinness Ord., and Power Ord. held their previous levels

Johnston Mooney Ord. advanced 1s. to 32s., and Bolands Deb. hardened to 12 1/16. McBirney Pref. added pence at 12s. 3d., and Cement Ord. were raised to 45s.

Allied Ironfounders Pref. rose to 21s., and Burke Deb. to 10½, but Clondalkin Paper Ord. eased to 6s. 6d. Independent "B" Ord. jumped a further 1s. to 91s., and Irish Wire Products Pref. improved to 21s. 6d.

Interest in British industrials was at low ebb. Coats Ord. gave way to 48s., and Shell Transport Ord. quoted 82s. 6d.

Important Deal in Plastics

An important combination of interests in the British plastic industry is announced in the form of an agreement between the Distillers Company and British Plaster Board, Ltd. Under this agreement the Distillers Company is to sell to British Plaster Board its shareholding in a subsidiary company, Gyproc Products, Ltd., which specialises in the manufacture of plaster board, payment to be made in the form of British Plaster Board shares.

The principal object of the deal is not profits, but the co-ordination of the research, the potentialities of plaster board and other plastics, and their application to the work of post-war reconstruction.

Details regarding the number of Plaster Board shares involved will be issued shortly, but no application will be made for permission to deal in them. Distillers, Ltd., will have the right to nominate two directors to British Plaster Board, Ltd.

RESEARCH

The interest which Distillers has taken in the development of plastics was stressed by the Chairman in the last report of the company, when he pointed out that the company's investments in the industry were extensive and increasing. He then urged the ever-increasing need for research. This interest is no new thing, however; for in 1934 the company became interested in a Canadian-produced plaster board product called Gyproc. It then made an agreement with the Canadian owners of the product, and a new company was formed, called Gyproc, Ltd. A factory was built at Rochester, and subsequently another at Glasgow. Distillers provided 60 p.c. of the share capital and Canadian interests the other 40 p.c.

The present deal is reminiscent of the transaction with the United Glass Bottle Co., when Distillers, Ltd., turned its bottle-making company over to the U.G.B. for shares. On the deal becoming known, Distillers shares rose 1/- to 96/- and British Plaster Board 9d. to 33/6.

The full report of Siemens Bros. and Co. shows that profits in 1943 totalled £314,452 (against £252,140 in 1942). This is after providing for taxation, but this year's figure includes £83,000 previously over-provided for taxation. Thus actual profit for the year was some £20,000 less. The dividend is maintained at 7½ p.c. for the eighth year in succession, and £488,712 is carried forward.

The balance sheet shows that stocks and work in hand have grown from £2,144,624 to £2,326,808, but debtors have fallen from £1,120,166 to £1,073,469. The Chairman says that the company has substantially increased its output. The £1 units are quoted at 33/- ex-div.

Growing Number Of Investors

There was no cessation yesterday of the small buying movement which has marked business recently, and London Stock Markets closed for the week-end in confident mood. The aggregate volume of buying is not large, but it is well spread, and indicates an increasing interest in stocks and shares among an expanding number of investors.

Attention was again principally devoted to Industrials. There was comparatively little doing in high-class investment stocks, and British Funds were slightly easier. Home Railway Stocks, too, lost a little of the appreciation seen this week. On the other hand, some of the Overseas Banks were better, while Brazilian Bonds were good.

There was some profit-taking in Shipping shares, and Orient Line reacted 2s. 9d. to 64s., and P. and O. 9d. to 41s., but Cunard rose 6d. to 23s. 6d. Britain Steamship put on 1s. 1½d. to 22s. 9d. Breweries were again a strong feature, Barclays rising 1s. 3d. to 33s. 6d., Fremlins 1s. 6d. to 59s., and Seager Evans another 1s. to 49s. 6d.

Among Miscellaneous Industrials, Dunlops at 43s. 6d., United Dairies at 64s., Electrical and Musical at 33s. 6d., and International Tea at 18s. 1½d., put on a few pence. British Portland Cement rose 2s. to 95s. Tobaccos were good, with "Imps" touching £8, but closing under the figure. "Bats," however, maintained their position at 5⅜.

Excessive Profits Condemned

The tendency of many firms to take advantage of the short supply of goods by looking for exorbitant rates of profit, was described as a short-sighted policy by Mr. Geo. A. Thompson, chairman, at the annual general meeting of Hely's, Ltd., in Dublin yesterday.

"It is not fair to the public," he declared, "and, in the long run, is injurious to any business. I set myself resolutely against any action of this kind." The rate of gross profit earned in their business, as a whole, was actually less than in pre-war years. In spite of stock scarcity, the company's turnover was the highest in its history. Their net profit was £14,331, as against last year's figure of £14,020. In spite of the shortage of tennis balls, their sales of rackets in 1943 was greater than ever before, and the present season looked like creating a record.

The report was seconded by Mr. F. A. Lowe and adopted. Dividends of 6 per cent. on the Preference shares, and 12½ per cent., plus a bonus of 6d. per share, on the Ordinary shares, were declared.

Mr. Thompson was re-elected a director, and Messrs. Peterson, Morrison and Co. were re-appointed auditors.

News in Brief

District Justice.—Mr. Martin J. Molloy has been appointed to act as a Justice of the District Court till 31st September.

Bound Over.—John Hudson (26), single, tailor, no fixed address, pleaded guilty, at the Circuit Criminal Court yesterday, to charges of shop and house-breaking and larceny. He was bound over for two years.

The Army.—Lieut. A. M. Sullivan has been promoted Acting Captain. Messrs. J. P. B. Donnelly and T. J. Lenehan have been appointed Lieutenants in the Reserve of Officers.

"Pot of Gold" Won.—Miss Stoner, Grove Park, Dublin, won the £40 "Pot of Gold" competition at the Theatre Royal last night. The question was to name the four lady members just elected to the Dail.

Received Wallet.—Henry J. Lynch, Newmarket, Dublin, was sent to prison for six months for receiving a wallet containing £1 18/-, which had been stolen by a woman from an Indian law student.

Stole Milk From Cow.—Found at midnight milking a cow in a field, Joseph Lynch, unemployed, of St. Joseph's terrace, Sligo, was sent to prison for 14 days for stealing the milk, at Sligo District Court yesterday.

Not Guilty.—James Leo Conway, furniture dealer, 145 Thomas street, Dublin, was, at the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court yesterday, by direction of Judge Wyse Power, found not guilty on charges of stealing and receiving a perambulator. He was discharged.

Three Months for Cycle Theft.—Missing for an hour, a bicycle was traced by detectives on Thursday. In the Dublin District Court yesterday, District Justice Mangan sentenced William Jackson (54), slater, of Lower Clanbrassil street, to three months' imprisonment for the theft of the bicycle.

Metal Workers' Strike.—Members of the National Union of Sheet Metal Workers employed in the Hammond Lane Foundry are on strike following a dispute centring around an allegation by the men that some of the employees are doing work that should not be done by them.

Damage to Trees.—At Bray, yesterday, Matthew Wheatley, Woodstock, Newtownmountkennedy, and Charles Golden, Leabeg, Newcastle, were each fined £2 10s. 0d., with £1 compensation, and £1 10s. 0d. costs, for damaging four trees at Woodstock Demesne.

Cookery Classes Wanted.—Having stated that the majority of servant girls in Sligo were quite useless as cooks, Alderman A. J. Dolan, at a meeting of Sligo Vocational Education Committee, suggested that special classes should be started for them in the technical school, which would benefit the girls and their employers.

Jury Disagrees.—After an absence of a half hour, a jury in Dublin Circuit Criminal Court yesterday failed to reach a verdict in a case in which Francis Fitzpatrick, Newmarket street, Dublin, was charged with having stolen 75 dozen rabbit skins, value £45, the property of the Irish Rabbit Skin Company, Ltd., Mill street, Dublin. The accused man was allowed out on continuing bail.

Seven Pensioners.—In the townland of Brinaleck, Co. Donegal, five members of the one family are receiving the old age pension, and two other members of the family now in the United States are drawing the pension there. Those at home are Seamus, Charles, Hugh, Madge and Ellen Ferry, and Kate and Patrick Ferry in America. All are children of the late Michael Ferry, Brinaleck.

Locomotive as Fire Engine.—The use of their locomotive as a fire engine has earned a G.S.R. driver and fireman the commendation of the company and a monetary reward. Noticing a fire in the goods shed at Mohill, Co. Leitrim, James Byrne (driver) and James Kilmartin (fireman), of Sligo, uncoupled their engine and drove it into the store. The driver broke away the masonry surrounding the burning woodwork, while the fireman brought his small injector spray hose into work and had the fire out in a few minutes.

Judge Orders Release of Ex-Solicitor

Sydney E. Cooper, who had carried on business as a solicitor at South Frederick street, Dublin, and had been committed to Mountjoy Prison for unsatisfactory answering in his bankruptcy examination, was further examined before Mr. Justice Overend in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, and at the close of his examination the judge directed that he should be released and that the Official Assignee should prosecute him under the Debtors Act, remarking: "Whether I will send the papers to the Attorney-General is another matter I will have to consider."

Mrs. Frances Harrison, Lower Rathmines road, Dublin, who had given evidence, was asked by Mr. Justice Overend: "Can you give any reason why you should have agreed with Mr. Cooper to swear that he owed you £1,000?"

"I am not able to answer it: I am just a wreck," answered Mrs. Harrison.

Mr. W. H. Carson, S.C. (instructed by Messrs. Bennett, Thompson and Edwards), for the Official Assignee, asked that the papers concerning Mrs. Harrison should be sent to the Attorney-General, and stated that as the result of her claim, which now was withdrawn, the estate had been put to expense, and that the time of the Court had been wasted.

Mr. Justice Overend said that he would consider the matter.

Bank Officials' Bonus Claim

The probable effects of the payment of a bonus by the banks to their officials were dealt with by Mr. J. T. O'Donovan, organising secretary of the Irish Bank Officials' Association, in evidence to the Wages Advisory Tribunal, sitting in the Land Commission Court, Dublin, yesterday. He said that the only way the payment of the bonus could affect industry was by causing the banks to raise the rates, which the banks had no intention of doing. He said also that it would cause the banks no inconvenience to pay a retrospective bonus.

From statements made on behalf of the banks, it could be inferred that they were prepared to meet any demand at present rates, and the payment of £100,000 extra among about 5,000 officials was not going to affect the cost of living of the country.

Mr. C. Lavery, S.C., for the banks, said that provision had been made for the increased cost of living and for the emergency. The bank officials are applying for a standard wage rate and a bonus order. The application is on behalf of the officials of nine Irish banks.

BATTLES OF WITS

NAPOLEON'S battles, it has been truly said, were won at the writing table. Which is just another way of saying that victory came because of the planning given to the battles beforehand.

Advertising battles are often won or lost in the same way.

Advertising, to-day, involves much more than the assembling of a few facts, dressing them up in smart phrases, and putting them in the newspaper front line.

It is much more than that. Planning an advertising campaign, as we understand it, often takes more time and thought than the actual preparation of the advertisements. For it is on the plan behind the campaign that success so often depends.

This organisation has rightly achieved some reputation for the care and thought which it puts into this essential preliminary work. If you think service of this kind would be helpful to your advertising, we shall be glad to discuss it with you.

PROTESTANT ORPHAN SOCIETY

Presenting the annual report to the Protestant Orphan Society at the annual meeting in Dublin yesterday, Canon J. Tobias said that the continued rise in the cost of living was making things increasingly difficult for the people who were caring for their orphans.

With the help of vouchers, accompanying State pensions, they were able to provide a sufficiency of food, but the provision of adequate clothing out of their slender means was almost impossible. In consequence, the committee had felt itself obliged to make a very considerable number of special clothing grants in particularly necessitous cases. The committee also found it necessary to increase the annual grants in a number of cases. These increases would amount in all to over £100 per annum, but the committee was confident that the friends of the society would provide the necessary additional funds.

The number of orphans on the roll at the beginning of the year was 194, and there were admitted during the year 35.

The statement of accounts showed a debit balance of £139 6s. 2d. The amount spent on the support of orphans was £4,417 2s. 3d., being an increase of £186 18s. 11d. compared with last year.

The following officers were elected:—The Rev. F. E. Byrn, M.A.; the Rev. W. R. A. Bond, B.A.; Canon H. C. Cave, M.A.; the Rev. W. H. Coulter, M.A.; the Rev. R. H. Dowse, M.A.; the Rev. N. D. Emerson, Canon W. N. Harvey, the Rev. T. J. Johnston, the Rev. J. B. Neligan, the Rev. A. W. F. Orr, the Rev. J. G. D. Pyper, Canon Tobias, the Rev. C. J. Tyndall, and Messrs. H. P. Dockrell, R. S. Fowler, F. A. Jones, A. Robinson, R. J. Williamson and R. R. Beamish.

The Archbishop of Dublin presided.

THE POPE'S APPEAL

According to Reuter, Highway Six has been cut at Valmontone, which is the pivot of the German defence line in front of Rome. The Italian capital is now clearly in sight of the Americans, who are advancing on the Artemisio Ridge, three miles north of Velletri, a town which the Allies expect to occupy in its entirety in the very near future. Rome and the Vatican City are within easy reach of Anglo-American assault; and in these circumstances, in an address to the College of Cardinals yesterday, which was broadcast by the Vatican Radio, the Pope has spoken to the world. We are forced to depend on an English translation of His Holiness's address to the College of Cardinals; and it is clear that this translation is anything but adequate. The Pope declares that "events in the past year have reached grave and atrocious proportions, which horrify all Christian and human feelings." He complains that the very soil around St. Peter's has been visited by the most modern methods of war, but adds that the threat of raids within the precincts of the city has given way, in fact, "to a conduct that shows greater regard" He declares that he still cherishes the hope that what is described as "this more moderate tendency" will continue, and that Rome will be spared the agony of becoming a cockpit of war. Whoever dares to lift his hand against Rome, His Holiness asserts, would be guilty of matricide before the world and God's eternal justice. The remainder of the Pope's address concerns itself chiefly with the larger issues of the world conflict. His advice to the belligerents is in the words of Marcus Claudius Marcellus: "Conquer yourselves; keep your temper; spare the vanquished; help the fallen foe to his feet."

The fate of Rome is a matter of immediate and anxious interest to every civilised individual, whatever may be his or her race or creed. Will the Eternal City be spared those horrors of destruction that have befallen so many other cities in Europe during the last five years? The military machine is a ruthless thing. It does not reck of any considerations, save those which govern the immediate issue of what is termed "military necessity." From the point of view of the professional soldier, be he British, American, German, or even Italian, Rome merely is a place to be attacked or defended. The military men on neither side will spare it, unless they receive specific instructions from their respective Governments. May we express the devout hope that such instructions already have been given? By all accounts, the people of Rome by now are in a grievous way. The Pope reveals the fact that the authorities of the Vatican City have been doing everything in their power to alleviate the "terrible conditions" under which such a large part of the population is living at the moment. "We have even begun to negotiate," he says, "the transport of foodstuffs by Vatican ships; but are still awaiting the consent of one of the belligerents." He declares that even when about 160,000 fled from Tuscany and Naples to Rome the number of persons in distress was nothing in comparison with that which is affected by the present struggle; and it is evident that His Holiness is doing everything within the limits of the Vatican City's resources to shelter refugees, and give food to the hungry. The events of the next few days ought to be decisive of the fate of Rome. The Germans seem to be making a determined stand in the Alban Hills, but hints have been thrown out in recent German bulletins that the Italian capital, from the military point of view, may not be worth defence. Every Christian will pray that the tide of war will be diverted from the city of such hallowed traditions and associations. If it should be saved, mankind will be overjoyed by the discovery of at least one ray of bright hope through the sinister clouds of despair that are gathering over our civilisation.

Irish Ports

The Dublin Port and Docks Board is to consider, during the next few weeks, an interesting motion. Tabled by the Chairman at a recent meeting, the motion advances the proposition that the best interests of the Board would be served by the appointment of a Port Board manager. One may presume that such an official, if appointed, would bear to the Board much the same relationship as a county manager bears to a county council. The case for the institution of a port manager, almost certainly, is that he would direct the affairs of the Port of Dublin with more efficiency and dispatch than the existing Board, which is made up of representatives of shippers, traders and the Corporation. Probably that is so; but the matter is one of the first importance, and an opinion upon it cannot be formed without mature consideration. Our present purpose is merely to draw attention, in a general way, to the whole subject of the ports and harbours of Ireland. Nobody who reads his newspapers can be unaware that the war has placed harbour boards throughout the country in a most difficult position. Reports from Galway, in particular, have been disturbing; but Cork and Waterford also seem to be feeling a severe strain. The reason is simple. Traffic to and from Irish ports to-day is merely a trickle; and that trickle itself is made up mainly of small coasters, which pay very little in harbour dues. Income, in other words, has shrunk almost to nothing. On the other hand, expenditure cannot be reduced in proportion. Harbours must be dredged; docks and equipment must be maintained in good condition, in preparation for the resumption of business after the war; and some staff still must be retained. The maintenance of our ports is not a matter of mere local interest. Their welfare is vital to the welfare of an island nation, especially in view of the proposal, often expressed in various quarters, and very recently set forth by the National Planning Conference, that an Irish merchant navy should be established. It may be that the time is opportune for a full consideration of the plight of Irish harbours—with a view not only to present relief, but to future organisation.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

I BROKE a rule the other evening. Monday evening, to be exact. I actually left the house—and went down town! Do not laugh. I beg you—I am perfectly serious. It happened this way. About six o'clock, moving about my residence, I happened to catch sight of myself in a mirror. Heavens! I was dressed in . . . . rags! A tramp. The years had gone by, and I had not noticed. My clothes, once the startled envy of the entire 1909 Oireachtas — garments of exquisite green velour—had . . . . decayed. With what kindly yet sad words will I describe that majestic sartorial ruin? The air of ancien régime, splendour come and gone? The infixed sob in all that is old yet undead? The dignified drollery, the modesty, the Whistler quality, of yesterday's costume? The decency of it all? Its unapposition with present-day thought? Its . . . . Irishness?

What food for reverie in that faded breeches knee? What grand Cork novelist—as chubby curly-headed little rascal—was thereon dandled? What Eton-suited juvenile, destined to be a Higher Executive Officer of insatiable bonus-hunger? What winsome girl of nuptial destiny not obscure? What amorous matron of full age? What cream-cheeked dairy maid on distant farm?

However, one must not become too sentimental about such things. Pereunt bracchiae at notantur. The world insists that one be dressed according to certain fashions (as modified by E.P.O. No. 684) and will visit with obloquy the heads of dissenters. (Will I ever forget the day I went to the Park races in kilts, eight modest sovereigns in my sporran and a knife for the black heart of any bookie who refused to pay? Beg your pardon sir but you can't come in here sir. No entertainers is allowed sir. Mr. Peard's ordhers sir.

(That happened). However, when on Monday last I realised the discreditable condition into which my raiment had fallen, my decision was immediate. The suit must be burned. But first, fresh vestments against the rainy day. I rang up my solicitor Mr. Burke and inquired whether he knew where a tailor who was conversant with his trade could be found. Fred Archer had recommended a tailor to me in the old days but this man had changed his address and all my efforts to contact Fred had been fruitless. Could my solicitor then help? Yes, yes, his friend Mr. Denis Guiney would be only too pleased to place his tailors at my disposal. A secret consultation could be arranged forthwith. I would he admitted at the postern door, so to speak, and the whole thing would be done discreetly. No publicity of any kind, my wish that I should travel incognito would be respected. Thus it was and I would like to place on record my deep appreciation of the courtesy and kindness I was accorded by all concerned, and of the patience, forbearance and resource with which my somewhat exacting demands were met. Nothing could have been more pleasant than the atmosphere which prevailed throughout.

But Heavens! When all was over, when I was about to rejoin my closed landau, some insane instinct prompted me to glance out of a window. The crowds! There were thirty or forty thousand people out there, waiting. They jammed the whole width of Sackville Street. I must instantly say this: I do not blame either Burke or Guiney. Certain it was, however, that news of my visit had leaked out, had spread through the town like wildfire. My people were out there and they wanted me. In the distance I could see a platform—some decent souls had not overlooked the customary address of devotion and loyalty. It was all terribly touching. Yet difficult beyond words, for no man of my rank dare show myself in the clothes in which I stood. It was a moment for decision. There was but one way out. I rang up Comerford. Could he send the big Merryweather and telescopic escape and "rescue" me from the back of Clery's? This request was instantly acceded to, and I would like to place on record my profound appreciation of the unfailing courtesy I encountered at the hands of Comerford and his men. More I will not say, but the co-operation and kindness that was manifested on all sides in this crisis gives excellent augury for the future of our land. I am very happy and pleased about it all and will in due time confer high honours on those who have incurred my pleasure. Thank you.

OBITUARY

REV. T. McELHONE

While swimming in the Thames, the Rev. Thomas McElhone, C.C., St. Agatha's, Kingston-on-Thames, Surrey, disappeared and was drowned. Aged 28 years, he was the fifth son of the late Mr. Joseph McElhone and Mrs. F. McElhone, Charles street, Sligo. He was educated at Summerhill College, Sligo, and at Maynooth, where he was ordained in June, 1942, by the Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid. He had been in Kingston-on-Thames for the past three months, and previous to that he had ministered at Deal, in Kent.

ALEXANDRA COLLEGE

Eight scholarships will be awarded at Alexandra College, Dublin, on the result of an entrance examination, open to all candidates under sixteen years of age in January last. The scholarship of £89 2s., which is endowed under the Gamble Trust, is for a student resident in the College, is tenable for two years, and provides for residence and tuition at approximately half the normal fees. Its intention is to enable a student to prepare for entrance to a university. The remaining scholarships range in value from £15 to £54. A test examination will be held, beginning on September 6th. Full particulars may be obtained from the Principal of the College.

A successful garden fête and sale, to help past students of Alexandra College working in the mission field, was opened by Lady Maffey at Alexandra College yesterday. These girls, who were working overseas, had pledged themselves to a life of self-denial, and theirs was a wonderful record, she said.

Attractions included an exhibition tennis match between C. A. Kemp and A. E. Fannin, while an enjoyable concert, organised by Miss Dorothy Stokes, L.R.A.M., was also held.

DUBLIN THEATRE GUILD

When the Dublin Theatre Guild next appears at the Gaiety, it will be in a new play, "They Burn in Air," by an Irish writer, Ralph Kennedy, whose work will be seen on the stage for the first time. In writing this play Mr. Kennedy had the co-operation of May Carey. The players will include Allan McClelland of the Ulster Group Theatre, Liam Gaffney of the Gate Company, and Austin Meldon of the Abbey. May Carey will also appear. The production will be directed by Laurence Elyan.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET ST., LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

CONGRATULATING Mr. de Valera on his "striking triumph," the Yorkshire Post comments to-day that it must be admitted that during his long period of office he has precisely represented the will of the great majority of the Irish people. "Mr. de Valera chose to go to the country, not on any vital political issue, for there was, and is, no such issue," says the paper. "There was heated controversy over the Transport Bill in the Dail, but during the election it paled into insignificance. Like the astute politician he is, Mr. de Valera called another tune, declaring the issue to be single-party government versus coalition."

"The obvious Government in Eire's condition of isolation would be one drawn from all parties," says the Glasgow Herald, "but Mr. de Valera will not compromise, even with his fellow-countrymen. He ought to be able to handle all the domestic issues. What is less certain is his ability, or indeed that of any of his contemporaries, to adjust Eire's outlook and economy to the future."

Trams Return

The comparative failure of the conversion some years ago of all the tram routes north of the Thames to trolley bus operation has led many provincial cities to think twice before scrapping any part of their tramway system. In London most of the cheap fares which used to exist on the tramways have been gradually withdrawn on the converted routes, and during recent years three times as many people here have been killed per trolley bus mile than per tram mile, and twice as many injured. In fact, in many cities throughout Britain the tramways, which use home-produced fuel and home-produced materials, are staging a remarkable "come back."

Potato Crop Delayed

A survey of Scottish early potato districts reveals that few fields will be ready for digging at the first permissible date — Monday next. Cold winds and frosts have delayed maturity. The situation is worse here in the South, where much damage was done by the early May frosts. The vagaries of the weather are one of the things which no Government departments can master. There was amusement recently when Major Lloyd George had twice to lift his central heating ban because of cold spells.

WORLD PEACE PROBLEM

A League of Nations with the force to carry out its decisions, while moving by constant effort to a world of political and economic democracy, was the solution to the problem of world peace suggested by Miss Patricia Lester, daughter of Mr. Sean Lester, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, in the course of her paper, "The Growth of Internationalism," read at yesterday's meeting of the Dublin University Fabian Society.

The failure of the League of Nations was due, Miss Lester said, to economic factors working behind political troubles, and the fact that the League Covenant was part of the Treaty of Versailles, which was a sealing of the victory of one combatant.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Trinity Week

THIS year Trinity Monday occurs in Trinity Week; or rather I should put it the other way round and say that Trinity Week is being held to synchronise with Trinity Monday.

As usual, an attractive programme of sporting events has been arranged. The big "draw" of the week, of course, will be the College Races, on Wednesday; but this year, as last year, unusual interest is likely to be shown in the cricket match, which will be played between the Trinity XI. and a team of visitors from the North, captained by Sir John Maffey. There also will be a smoking concert—a welcome innovation.

In spite of rationing and catering difficulties, the old custom of entertaining relatives and friends to tea in students' rooms shows no sign of flagging. On the contrary, I already have received quite a number of invitations; and the social aspect of Trinity Week is being kept well in the foreground. Whether, as a result of the changed climate, or because the Week is being held earlier than usual this year—I presume it is being held earlier than usual—the guests of the Committee in the Pavilion will not enjoy the treat of unlimited strawberries and cream which used to be such a feature of the College Races. God be with the old days!

New Fellows

I am told that there is great excitement in College concerning the election of new Fellows, the result of which will be announced on Monday morning according to ancient usage. One of the Fellowships is more or less a foregone conclusion. It is in Legal Science, and almost certainly it will be awarded to Mr. J. A. Coutts, who for some years has been a conspicuously successful lecturer in the Law School. Mr. Coutts is an Englishman, Cambridge, I think, who has been here since before the war. Not only is he a brilliant lecturer and an acknowledged expert in his subject, but also he is very popular in Trinity among staff and students alike.

Two other Fellowships are being awarded; and speculation within the walls of the "Holy and Undivided" is rife regarding the identity of the successful candidates.

Competition for these two posts has been confined to existing members of the staff of Dublin University who are under forty years of age, and I hear that there are no fewer than sixteen candidates. No particular subjects have been specified, so the widest possible choice can be made. Apparently, what are wanted are two young men with experience of University teaching, who also will be prepared to take on, and to make a success of, the arduous job of tutors. Since the war, Trinity has lost the services of quite a number of its younger Fellows. Dr. Walter Starkie, Professor of Spanish, is in Madrid. Professor George Duncan and Professor Parke both are across the water; so is Dr. Wormell, and the Medical School has suffered sadly through the absence of Dr. "Joe" Biggar, who also is doing temporary duty elsewhere.

The Old Way

Although everybody nowadays laughs at the old system of examination for Fellowships of Trinity College, many of us who were brought up in the ancient tradition, although we recognise the many advantages of the new—dare I say Redbrick?—system, are not ashamed to regret the passing of the old.

In those days, which lasted until just after World War I (I have an idea that Mr. F. La Touche Godfrey was the last Fellow to be elected as a result of the written examination) there were only two subjects for Fellowship: Classics and Mathematics, with "Ethics and Logics" thrown in, as it were, as a makeweight. It was a terrific examination, so gruelling, indeed, that physical stamina of a high order was almost as necessary for success as intellectual brilliance. The exam. was held once a year, and there have been cases in which a candidate went up seven or eight years in succession before gaining the coveted prize.

It has been said, as I think unjustly, that Fellowship was so hard that, once a man "got" the exam., he was unlikely to do anything else for the rest of his life; but anybody who takes the trouble to look through the list of Fellows of Trinity College will realise at once the number of outstanding brains and personalities that the now despised system produced.

The Mahaffy Legend

Within living memory, probably, the best known of Trinity's Fellows was John Pentland Mahaffy, whose reputation has become almost legendary. The fact that he did not become Provost until he was already an old man had its origin in politics. For a long time before Salmon died Mahaffy was regarded as a certainty for the Provost's House; and he had every reason to believe himself that he would step immediately into the famous Doctor's shoes. But fate, and the politicians, decided otherwise.

At that time, the Irish question was burning rather fiercely. The Ulster Unionists did not like Mahaffy. They regarded him with suspicion; his politics were not sufficiently orthodox for Belfast. Salmon died in January, 1904, while the Conservative Government was in power in England, and it seems that Mahaffy had been promised by Arthur Balfour that the job was as good as his. But when it came to the bit, an eminently "safe" man, and a true-blue Unionist, was chosen, in the person of Anthony Traill, who was a year junior to Mahaffy in the list of Fellows.

On Commons

Two good stories—doubtless, there are many others—are told about Mahaffy and Traill, who ought to have loved each other as brothers; but somehow they didn't! One night on Commons, Traill, who was rather unprepossessing in appearance, being short in stature and of rubicund countenance, noticed that Mahaffy was regarding him with unusual intentness. For some time he pretended to ignore his colleague's rapt interest in his person; but finally he could stand it no longer.

"What are you looking at, Mahaffy?" he barked, or rather growled. The late lamented Anthony could be at times what his fellow-Ulstermen describe as "a coorse Christian."

"Oh, nothing, my deah Twaill," replied Mahaffy. "I was just wondewing."

"Wondering at what?"

"I was just wondewing, to tell you the twuth, whetheh you awe a man degenewating into a bison, or a bison developing into a man."

The other story relates to an incident that is supposed to have occurred during Traill's Provostship. Mahaffy knew that if Traill should die he hardly could be passed over again, although by this time he was well advanced in years.

One night, again on Commons or in the Fellows' Common Room, the discussion turned on a story that had appeared in that morning's Irish Times about somebody who had been buried alive.

"Isn't that awful, Mahaffy?" said the Provost, who seemed to be genuinely shocked by the report. "I can imagine nothing more terrible than premature burial."

"Weally?" replied Mahaffy. "I think I can."

"And what might that be?" asked the unsuspecting Traill, walking straight into Mahaffy's trap.

"Quite simple, my deah fellow. Delayed decease, of course."

Bury and Stack

I cannot resist another story of the old Fellowship system, which was told to me by my late friend and chief, John Edward Healy. If it is not true, it certainly ought to be. The famous J. B. Bury, who afterwards became Regius Professor of History at Cambridge, sat for Fellowship after he already had become recognised throughout the world of scholarship as one of the greatest living authorities on Roman history. One of his own books, indeed, had been placed on the course for Trinity's Fellowship. But little things like that were not allowed to interfere with the rigour of the Trinity law. Bury had to sit for Fellowship like everybody else; and he had a painful experience.

Among the examiners was an old gentleman named Thomas Stack, who had become a Fellow in 1838, and examined Bury in his own book in 1885. He asked him one question which Bury answered viva voce at some little length.

"I am sorry, Mr. Bury, but that is wrong."

"But, sir, since I wrote that book new light has been thrown on the problem, and I am changing it in the next edition."

"I am sorry, Mr. Bury, your answer is wrong. I must give you nought!"

How to clean the lavatory

To clean the lavatory thoroughly and effectively, simply sprinkle a little Harpic into the bowl and leave as long as possible (last thing at night is a good time). Then flush. The whole bowl gleams white!

Because it is specially made for the lavatory, Harpic does the job effectively and easily. Its thorough action removes all discoloration—cleans and deodorizes.

Harpic is easy to use—a real boon to the housewife.

Harpic's cleansing action reaches right round the S-bend. The whole bowl is clean and sanitary—the part you don't see, as well.
